ALL SORTS.

—The Tiger Hat at the Emporium. a15*

—The Sharon case is only just opened.

—A full calf shoe for $2.50 at Blumenthal & Cohn's. a15*

—J. C. Bryant the Bodie mining expert is in the city.

—For a neat Summer coat and vest, try Blumenthal & Cohn's Emporium. a15*

—Jake Gray who lost a hand last year is now blacking boots. Give him a lift.

—Hugh Mohan is delivering his Chatauqua maps which gives the best of satisfaction.

—Prayers are being said in the churches of Boston, irrespective of creed, for Sullivan's safe arrival from a foreign shore.

—Mr. Victor Stuttmaster, formerly of Greenwood Bros., Oakland, Cal., has accepted a position as salesman, with M. Cohn.

—Ayer's Cathartic Pills are suited to every age. They are mild and pleasant in action, thorough and searching in effect, and, being sugar-coated, are easy to take. These pills never fail to give satisfaction.

—A perfectly sound body and a mind unimpaired are possible only with pure blood. Leading medical authorities indorse Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best blood purifying medicine in existence. It vastly increases the working and productive powers of both hand and brain.

—The leading Democrats declare that Cleveland is the simon-pure, genuine "boss," and he has with him the band-wagon and all the commissary stores. He not only intends to be nominated for President, but names Gray, of Indiana, for Vice-President, and proposes that the platform shall be a second edition of his tariff reform message.

—Roscoe Conkling's father was a very proud man. He was once mortally offended because the chairman of a political meeting introduced him to the audience as "father of Roscoe Conkling."

Like the father of Felix Mendelssohn who once said: I am nobody. When a boy I was the son of Moses Mendelssohn, and now as a man I am but the father of Felix Mendelssohn.

It Pays.

"So, you have got a wife?" was asked of a newly married man.

"Don't know, don't know," he replied with some hesitation. "Sometimes I think I've got her, and sometimes I think she's got me. You see, we have only been married a short time. But when she goes out shopping, we always agree to buy everything we need at Olcovich Bros., all the way from what we eat at breakfast to what we wear when we go out in the evening, and my friend," he continued, "it pays." a1,lm

Seeds! Seeds!

Everyone ought to take advantage of the fine weather to plant a garden. If you want fresh seeds that will grow to George Thaxter's. Some people find difficulty in making flowers grow. It is an easy matter. They require dampness and not too much sun. After planting the seed spread some gunny sacks over the ground and keep the sacks wet. The flowers will start every time. Then remove the sacks and give them the sun. The sack is an ever potent thing in Nevada soil.

The State Prison Affair.

The proceedings against Frank McCullough by the Board of Commissioners is merely to test the law. At present Warden McCullough is under two sets of bonds and he does not know whether his authority comes from the Legislature or the Board. The matter will come before the Supreme Court as a test case. Judge Edwards is McCullough's attorney.

Its Delicacy of Flavor

And the efficacy of its action have rendered the famous California liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs, immensely popular. It cleanses and tones up the clogged and feverish system, and dispels Headaches, Colds and Fevers. For sale by Geo. C. Thaxter, Agent.

THE CAVE DWELLERS.

The People who Went Back to the Prehistoric Times.

The three people who were discovered in the cave in the rocky knoll near the State Prison, have a rather strange history.

The parties who lived in the cave all Winter were Bodie Jack, Antone Martinis and Agnes Miller.

Bodie Jack was for many years a resident of Bodie, and plied a lucrative trade as a footpad. His weapon was the sandbag, and for years men were mysteriously laid out with this implement, until one night a man named Cummings was passing near a saloon light, when Jack slipped behind him and lifted the sand club. The shadow of the up-lifted arm warned Cummings of his danger, and wheeling he covered Jack with a six-shooter. Jack begged for his life, and the next day jumped the town.

Martinis is an old convict, and drifted up this way from Mexico, where he had several affairs.

Agnes Miller, who consented to spend the Winter with the two men, was born on a Prussian man-of-war in New York Harbor, and at the time it was claimed that she was the daughter of a Prussian diplomat and General. She claims to have been the daughter of a man high in State affairs of Prussia, but would never reveal his name, saying that her life would only bring shame and disgrace to him. She figured in a Washington scandal nearly twenty years ago, being implicated in a divorce suit, but it never came to trial, and the necessity of reviving the case after all these years is not apparent.

A curious feature of the present episode is that while she was living in a cave with these two characters her former husband was occupying a cell in the State Prison not over a quarter of a mile away. He is known all over the Coast as "Sacramento Bill."

The trio went into the cave late last Fall, supplied with cooking utensils, blankets and provisions, and decided to spend the Winter there. In about a month their provisions gave out and they had recourse to sheep stealing in order to replenish the larder. The terrible blizzard of last Winter caused them great suffering, but not so much from the life in the cave as the work of foraging for food and fuel. The two men took turns in getting provisions and wood, and a remnant of chivalry nerved them to the work of seeing that the woman did not die. They roamed about in the night in the face of the bitterest storms that ever swept over the State, and when Spring came they were able to say that they pulled the woman through.

The cave was not much more than a hole in the lee side of a curious mound of rocks that rises along the road between the State Prison and Empire. It is an isolated mound of rocks, which at first glance looks as if it might have been placed there by human agency.

At the time of the first excitement over the prehistoric tracks it was noticed that the tracks of the mastodon, the cave bear and the giant all took the direction of the curious mound.

Some claimed that the mound had been built thousands of years ago by the early cave dwellers and mound builders of Nevada, and that the soil had gradually accumulated over the ruins.

Some parties tried to induce John Mackay to furnish the money to make excavations and thoroughly explore the ruins, which a good many people insist will furnish an interesting find for the archeologists in the shape of relics of the prehistoric age. Mackay thought favorably of the matter at one time, but on examining the rocks thought they showed traces of volcanic origin. At any rate he never invested.

The cave being small the refugees—who seemed to have been trying to revive the memories of the Outcasts of Poker Flat in real life—extended the entrance by means of flat slate-like rocks, which they built in the form of a portico. They also used sagebrush to keep off the snow and wind from the Southwest, and all three slept in a bed of sagebrush and the fleeces of the sheep they had stolen, with two coarse blankets as a covering. At times their sufferings were intense, and only by keeping sagebrush fires constantly burning before the entrance of the cave were they enabled to keep from freezing. When they attempted to build a fire inside the cave the smoke was suffocating.

On the preliminary examination the two men stood by the woman, and refused to connect her in any way with the larceny of the sheep, although the arresting officers found the tracks of a woman's shoe along with the other two, near Hark's sheep corral. When they tried to fit her shoe to the track they failed. The shoes she originally wore had disappeared, and she wore a larger gaiter in their place. The two prisoners swore positively that she had never assisted them in their raids, and claim that they took the sheep to save her and themselves from starvation.

THE LITTLE "LOUISE."

A Lot More Prizes Again Sprinkled About Carson.

Again the Little Louisiana Lottery slings its prizes about Carson at a lavish rate. The agents cashed over $1,000 in prizes. None of the big prizes fell here but an everlasting lot of little ones. The big Lottery was hardly heard of. It looks as if the people who purchase the tickets were all flocking to the Little Lottery, or else the Little Lottery is luckier for Nevada.

In either event if people are bound to play lottery and they seem inclined that way, or at least about nine out of ten, they had better patronize a Coast lottery than one run down in New Orleans, that hardly ever drops a cent in this section.

We Told You So.

The Committee of stockbrokers who were appointed to investigate the mines and mills have all resigned and investigated nothing.

This is just as the APPEAL predicted several months ago. Every few years the Stock Board gets virtuous and appoints a committee of its most virtuous members to "investigate" the mines, but we have never known them to appoint any committees to investigate the really methods of the Pine Street Stock Board. It looks as if the mining managers intimated to the brokers that there would be a counter investigation, and both sides were willing to call off their dogs.

As soon as the "investigation" committee resigned the inside manipulators lifted stock, but there was no change in the ore developments. This shows that the "inside manipulators" can lift stocks any time they feel like it.

Funeral of Johnie Nevers.

Yesterday Johnie Nevers was buried from the residence of his parents.

There was a large concourse of friends at the house and a choir consisting of Mrs. Dorsey, Mrs. Howe, Judge Leonard and Nat Dow sang the Burial Anthem, "The Reaper" and "The Sweet By and By."

The Episcopal burial service was read at the grave by Rev. Geo. R. Davis and the body was committed to the dust.

There was a large attendance and a long line of carriages followed the remains to the cemetery.
